Europe is facing the greatest economic transformation since the beginning of the industrial revolution. The goal is to achieve climate neutrality in roughly two decades. Europe's progressive forces must define and shape this transformation. Yet, the war in Ukraine has abruptly changed the path of transformation, even if the basic road map remains the same.

The texts published in this book are part of the broad debate that progressive social and political forces in Germany are currently conducting on this historic transformation. The list of authors for this reader includes important Social democratic politicians such as Chancellor Olaf Scholz and several ministers of the Federal government as well as leading German trade unionists and academics.

With contributions from Thorben Albrecht, Florian Bieberbach, Sigmar Gabriel, Martin Gornig, Hubertus Heil, Nils Heisterhagen, Dierk Hirschel, Reiner Hoffmann, Gustav Horn, Claudia Kemfert, Jürgen Kerner, Rafael Laguna de la Vera, Matthias Machnig, Stefan Mair Siemtje Möller, Achim Post, Ralf Rukwid, Philipp Schlüter, Jan Schnellenbach, Olaf Scholz, Svenja Schulze, Jens Südekum, Michael Vassiliadis, Norbert Walter-Borjans, Stephan Weil, Frank Werneke, Bernd Westphal, Dirk Wiese, Frank Wilhelmy, Brigitte Zypries.
